

THE LARIAT 1945

*The Junior and Senior Classes of Cheyenne High School
Cheyenne, Wyoming
Present*

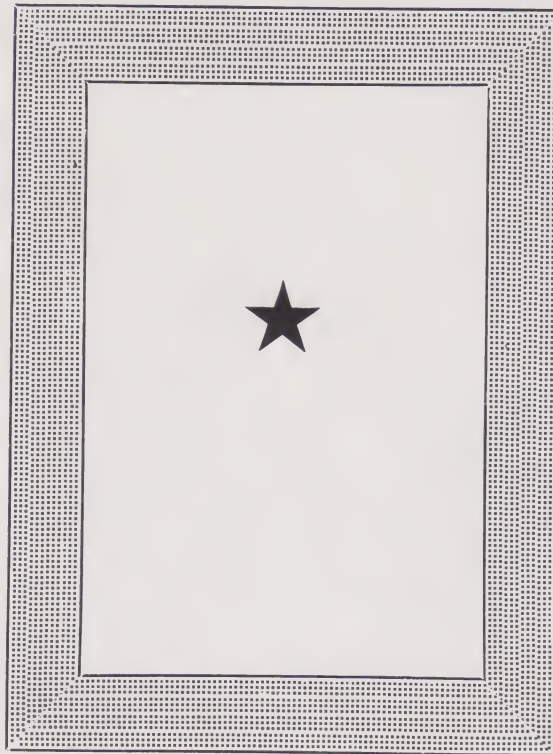

Foreword

This book is presented with the hope that it will be a permanent word and picture record of the year 1944-45 at Cheyenne high school. If those who have worked to make this book a success have caught a glimpse of its activities and personalities, and have incorporated a trace of the spirit of the school, then the 1945 LARIAT has attained its objective.

To those men and women of Cheyenne high school who have entered military service in behalf of our country's defense, we respectfully dedicate this book.

So live, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

School Board

Dusch, Davis, Storey, Wilson, Bloomfield, Baggs

Many of the problems concerning the Cheyenne school system have to be met and solved satisfactorily by the school board. Their chief executive is J. L. Goins, superintendent of the schools. Their meetings are held in the administration building usually on the first Monday of each month.

At various times during the school year, many instances arise when the utmost discretion is needed to cope with serious problems such as resignation and acceptance of teachers, changes and repairs of school buildings, and other such matters. The group under the direction of Dr.

I. L. Davis, has won the favor and respect of all the citizens of Cheyenne.

Several years ago, when the problem of building the addition to the high school was put before them, the group then serving, endorsed it to the fullest extent. Before that, the board serving when the present high school was erected also gave that project their fullest support. Last year, the discussion of building a field house across from the high school loomed into view. This was also handled efficiently, but as the war was still being waged, it was thought best to postpone it until the post-war years.

Other members who have been on the school board many years are: E. T. Storey, treasurer; Lawrence M. Baggs, clerk; C. N. Bloomfield, E. A. Dusch, and W. O. Wilson. Most of these men have been elected to serve on the board for many years in succession as they have performed many duties for the schools.

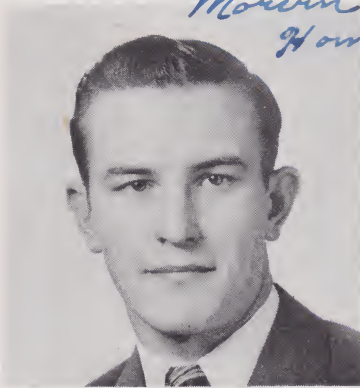

These civic spirited men deserve the praise for making the Cheyenne school system one of the best in the state.

Cheyenne high's "parliament" could very well be the monicker for the student council, for it is composed of students who are elected by each of the three classes to represent them in the executive duties of the school. The motto of this organization might read: "Of, by, and for the students." Heading this council are Marvin Homan, who also presides at the assemblies, and Connie Nelson, who takes the minutes of all the meetings. Sponsors of this governing body are Dorothy Hale and Maurice Mann.

Representatives from all student organizations in the school are appointed to this group. The only underclassmen serving on the council are the junior and sophomore class officers, while the remainder of the seats are held by members of the graduating class.

Some of the council's duties are to consider matters of scholastic and social importance and to formulate plans for future activities for the school and the students. They also help to maintain morale and to raise the school's scholastic standing. Any changes or amendments in the school's constitution are placed before the council before final ratification. The student council in past years has created and adopted a school creed and the official Indian emblem. This body sponsors the decorating of windows during the weekend of homecoming, and they annually sponsor several social affairs, the most important of which is the Mid-Year Formal.

As their meetings are not highly publicized, many students are unaware of the fact that theirs is a student council which takes care of their interests.

The 1944-1945 Lariat Annual made its appearance this year for the first time since the 1942 edition. At that time it was thought that no more annuals would be published for the duration of the war. The assumption was nearly correct, because publishing a school annual under wartime restrictions proved to be both a difficult, and at times, doubtful job. However, the staff took up the task, making use of available materials to produce the result you see here.

The project was started early in the school year with a two-fold purpose in mind. One was to insure delivery of the books to the students on time; the other to make certain that proper materials could be secured for the publication.

High school students who wished to purchase a copy of this year's annual, did so during an intensive two-week campaign in October. The full amount for a copy of the book was paid at the time. The campaign was successfully conducted by the business staff. This group sold over 525 subscriptions to the annual at that time.

The proverbial midnight-oil was burned long and fiercely on many a night during the school year while the staff pieced together the 100-odd page book. The art staff, working under the able direction of Miss Lillian Harms, designed the beautiful cover, did the necessary art work, and took charge of the mounting of all individual and group pictures which appear in the book.

The copy and pictures were compiled and arranged into the proper form by the editorial staff who together with Marian Stout stayed up nights with a bottle of aspirin to put the book in final shape. Mrs. Stout replaces Arthur Buck as annual sponsor. Mr. Buck is now serving in the armed forces.

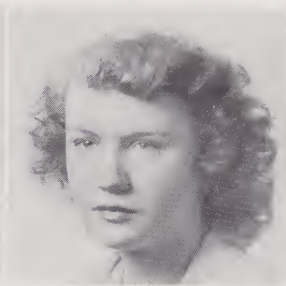

With the exception of school life shots, all photography for this year's annual was done by Doyle Quigley, who generously donated his time and labor to get the beautiful photography which appears in this book. All individual senior pictures were taken in the Quigley studio before January 1. Organization and class pictures were taken at the high school during January.

Tom Kilty was editor-in-chief of this year's publication while Sid Bronstein served as his assistant. Jack Hunter was business manager of the book; Gene Binning took charge of the advertising section.

In spite of the many difficulties of publishing a paper in wartime, The Lariat, official Cheyenne high school newspaper, this year was one of the best, most interesting series of papers the school has ever had. The staff, even though they were held back by the many wartime restrictions, made The Lariat a paper even a peacetime school could be proud of.

From the beginning issue, September 18, to the final paper May 18, the question, "When does The Lariat come out?", was heard every day, for this year, more than ever before, The Lariat, packed full of school news and features, was an important part in the lives of the student body.

Many new features were initiated this year to make the Lariat one of the best newspapers in the Rocky Mountain Region. The staff led by the editor, Glen Dusch, and his assistant, Ginny Avis, succeeded in making the paper more interesting to the student body by printing more feature material and introducing many features new to

The Lariat. The 1944-45 Lariat was a big success both in printing the news and in entertaining the student body.

For the first time in 4 years, The Lariat staff published an April Fool edition of the paper, The Lariat. The special edition was undoubtedly the most colorful edition to hit Cheyenne high school.

The Lariat was entered in both the National Scholastic Press Association contest and the International Quill and Scroll contest for student newspapers and received high ratings in both contests.

Quill and Scroll

Avis, Specht, Tsuda
Lindsay, Rogers, Kilty, Dusch

Quill and Scroll, the international honorary society for high school journalists, numbers over 1000 chapters and these are located in every state of the Union, Hawaii, England, China, British Honduras, and Alaska. Fifteen thousand young journalists from schools which are outstanding in the quality of their publication work, wear the badge of the society.

Organized April 10, 1926, by a group of high school advisers for the purpose of encouraging and rewarding individual achievements in journalism and allied fields, the society has taken an active part in raising standards in this field, and in directing the course of high school journalism.

The society promotes research and conducts surveys in the field of high school journalism to determine the types of publications best suited to high schools, and to standardize the instruction in this field. Through the official publication of the society, practical information concerning every phase of publication work is brought to editors, staffs and advisers with the end in view of raising the quality of high school journalism.

Many other tasks are undertaken by the society, among them the organization of press associations, criticism of manuscripts, establishment of better relations between schools and communities, and the acquainting of the public with the value of high school journalism.

Quill and Scroll is an international honorary society. It is connected with no school or university. The country is divided into 6 districts, each of which is represented by at least one officer. Because chapters are wide spread, a national convention is not held.

According to the constitution, members of Quill and Scroll must be chosen from students enrolled in high school who at the time of their election must meet the following requirements: (1) They must be of at least junior standing; (2) They must be in the upper third of their class in general scholastic standing at the time of election; (3) They must have done superior work in some phase of journalistic endeavor; (4) They must be recommended by the adviser or by the committee governing publications; (5) They must be approved by the national executive secretary.

The national organization makes no requirement as to the activities of local chapters, leaving this matter to the adviser and members. The local chapter can engage in such work as will best serve the cause of journalism in its high school. In a few instances, chapters construe membership in purely an honorary sense; in such case the chapters do not engage in activities or undertake projects, considering membership as the final reward for worthy achievement in high school journalism.

The society has the support of America's outstanding journalists and educators. Famous educators also endorse its program and contribute to the columns of its publication.

The Cheyenne senior high school chapter of Quill and Scroll is known as the Tracy McCracken chapter. The position of president is held by Ginny Avis and the chapter's members include: Glen Dusch, Mary Lee Rogers, Sid Bronstein, Neil Levitt, Betty Lou Smith, George Tsuda, Shirley Bradley, Betty Lear, Roger Powell, Bob Specht, Ralph Kirsch and Tom Kilty. Marian Stout is the sponsor.

To be elected to National Honor Society is one of the highest honors that may be bestowed upon students. The society was organized in 1926 and is based upon four principles—scholarship, service, leadership, and character.

Scholarship: Scholastically, a student must be in the upper one third of his class.

Service: A willingness to render any service to the school, or to the community through the school.

Leadership: Demonstrating initiative in the class room; promoting high school activities; contributing ideas for the life of the school.

Character: Constantly demonstrating such qualities as personality, honesty, reliability, promptness, achievement, and morality.

The members of the organization are elected by the entire faculty; but no teacher may rate any person he has had neither in class nor in extracurricular activities. Membership is limited to fifteen per cent of the senior class and five per cent of the junior class.

The formal initiation is an impressive affair held before the entire student body in assembly. At the initiation each initiate lights his torch from a large torch representing the torch of learning, the symbol of the society. Also at this initiation the official colors of the organization, which are blue and white, are represented. Members of the organization purchase pins which have on them the initial letters of its four standards.

The 1944-45 sponsors of the organization include: Pearl Freeman, Myrl Gibson, Maurice Mann, Wilhelmina Miller, Clyde Owens, Alice Williamson, and Karl F. Winchell.

Shortly before graduation, the Rotary Club honors the senior members of the society at a luncheon. Also in the spring the old members and initiates have a party or picnic.

Although the various clubs and organizations of Cheyenne high have been very active during the past two years since the last Lariat annual was published, there is no doubt that the speech and dramatics classes, and the Thespian Club in particular, have turned in stellar roles of achievement.

By appearing before various clubs and organizations in Cheyenne and performing before the soldiers and patients of Ft. Francis E. Warren, the dramatists have established a reputation for polished performances that keeps them in constant demand.

The students participated in the speech contests held in Longmont, and Denver, Colorado, and also instituted a series of Cheyenne speech contests, the second annual one of which was held February 10, 1945. Last year under the direction of Marian Stout, dramatics instructor, the speech and dramatics students presented "Young April" and "Best Foot Forward," the junior and senior plays respectively. Last November the junior class chalked up a new record with the presentation of "What a Life!" a rollicking three-act comedy. "Arsenic and Old Lace," a smash hit, was chosen for the senior class play, and it appeared April 27-28.

One of the most profitable enterprises undertaken by the Thespians was the establishment of a studio for use by speech and dramatic students. Facilities had long been inadequate for such courses as radio and oratory; finally, the students planned a benefit performance to raise money to finance such a studio. On December 3, 1943, the students, supervised by Margaret Rice, public speaking and debate coach, and Marian Stout, presented a speech festival in the high school auditorium. A one-act play was presented, and a box supper, night club style, was held on the stage. During the supper various acts and dances were performed for the entertainment of the diners, after which the Swing Club provided music for dancing.

Receipts from the festival totaled more than $225, proving the immense success of the project, and work was immediately begun.

This year, the studio, situated in Room 201, neared completion with the installation of rugs, draperies, and a suite of western style furniture. A combination radio and recording set had been installed previously.

In addition to these activities, another type of entertainment was established last year which, through popular demand, has become traditional. In March, 1943, the Thespians and speech students presented 14 one-act plays which they produced, directed, and acted in.

The 1944-45 school term was a big year for the Cheyenne Chapter of the National Forensic League. Despite the curtailment of transportation, the league, composed of the top Cheyenne debaters and dramatists, was able to attend several large speech conferences in the Rocky Mountain region.

Beginning their activities with the annual Longmont, Colorado speech meet in November, the chapter began its interscholastic competition earlier this year than in any of the previous years. After returning from Longmont with top honors, the Cheyenne speakers primed themselves for the Regis speech meet in Denver. The Cheyenne chapter also won the majority of honors in the Regis conference held in Denver in January.

The highlight of the speech season came February 10 when approximately two hundred fifty speakers from three states arrived in Cheyenne for the second annual Cheyenne high school invitational speech conference.

Cheyenne speakers finished one of the most successful seasons in the history of the Cheyenne chapter of the League by winning the Rocky Mountain Speech Tournament held in Longmont, April 13 and 14, 1945.

With the loss of the debate instructor, Margaret Rice, in January, the sponsorship of the Cheyenne chapter was given jointly to Marian Stout and Margot Truman, who was appointed to replace Margaret Rice. The two teachers directed the planning of the Cheyenne conference and primed the students for the district N.F.L., the most important tournament of the year. The president of the league was Glen Dusch and Shad Hoffman was secretary.

One of the most active clubs in Cheyenne high school is the Tomahawk organization. This group is made up of thirty-eight girls who are chosen by their scholastic standing and also by popular vote of all the senior girls.

The Tomahawk group of 1944 to 1945 accomplished much. The first meeting was held on September 11 when the new Tomahawks were introduced to the old members. Donna Jean Breeden was elected Council representative while the positions of president and secretary were held by Viola Grunden and Eleanor Tucker respectively.

On September 26 the new members were initiated and all the Tomahawks ate supper in the cafeteria. On October 27 the Tomahawks were in charge of the Homecoming assembly when the Indian princess and her two maids were crowned.

December 18 Miss Faivre, Tomahawk sponsor, presided over her last meeting. She left to join the Foreign Red Cross. The Tomahawks presented her with a sterling silver identification bracelet.

On February 10 all Tomahawks not participating in the NFL Speech Meet acted as time-keepers and rendered valuable service. Also between halves of the Cheyenne-Laramie basketball game of February 24, they presented a stunt for the entertainment of the audience. The cheers and yells of these girls were to be heard at each home basketball game and they had the satisfaction of seeing their Indians go to the state basketball tournament at Laramie.

The two sponsors of the Tomahawks are: Miss Dorothy Hale and Miss Myrl Gibson. They have been co-operative in all undertakings and have upheld the traditions of good sportsmanship and friendship so typical of their school. The Tomahawks feel that theirs is an honor not given to merely any girl, and they will keep their Tomahawk insignias after graduation to remind them of a fine organization to which they were proud to belong.

The Girls' Athletic Association was organized in the fall of 1934 with the purpose of promoting interest in girls' athletics in high school. Miss Edna Cole, sponsor for several years, left this year for Red Cross duties. Mrs. Murphy took the position she vacated.

The objectives of the club are: to stimulate and organize a wholesome program of physical activities; to offer to all girls greater opportunities for the development of sport skills; to stimulate interest in health and to promote simplified common-sense training; to stimulate interest in sportsmanship and to promote sportsmanlike attitudes and conduct; to stimulate interest in wholesome leisure activities.

Points for membership and awards are given for: supervised practice; participating in tournaments; placing first, second, or third in tournaments; sport skill tests; being officers or sports leaders.

The awards picnic was held in the spring. Several members received their sweater awards. Many others, received pins, guards, or emblems.

The 1944-45 officers were: Elsie O'Hashi, President, Joan Franson, Vice-President, Jean Harnish, Secretary, Marilyn Hansacker, Treasurer, and Marilyn Barnett, Student Council Representative. Sports Leaders were: Marie Yon-koff, Tennis, Shirley Godel, Horseshoes, Estelle Brown, Volleyball, Alyce Lujan, Swimming, Marie O'Hashi, Tumbling, Mary Lee Rogers, Basketball, Marjorie Austin, Track and Softball, and Mitzi Seale, Badminton.

Rogers, Powell, Breeden, Johnson, Yeta, Steinke, Carter, Rhodes, Wyeth, Restivo

To acquaint all sophomore and new girls with the various organizations and activities in Cheyenne high school is the main purpose of the Big Sisters Organization which has a membership of about forty senior girls. Members are taken from the upper half of the senior class, although others may join upon application. The faculty sponsors are Miss Myrl Gibson, Miss Wilhelmina Miller, Miss Eva Stephenson, Miss Gladys Nimmo, and Miss Pearl Freeman. Virginia Roessler is president of the organization; Ladessa Johnson, vice-president; and Darlene Haines, secretary-treasurer.

September 24, the Big Sisters entertained all sophomore and new girls in the auditorium. The program was chiefly to acquaint new girls with school activities to which they might belong.

Circle games and dances furnished the entertainment.

The outstanding social event sponsored by the Big Sisters was the Sadie Hawkins Dance which was held November 10 this year. It was an all girl party. Girls were costumed to represent the Dog Patch characters, and prizes were given for the best costumes. The Sadie Hawkins Dance has become an annual party, and one which girls count as one of the most entertaining of school parties throughout the school year.

Each year, in the spring, the junior girls who become Big Sisters assist the senior girls in entertaining ninth grade girls. A representative group of Big Sisters bring the guests from Junior high school to a tea in the auditorium. This serves as a welcome to the incoming sophomore girls.

Bradley, Wade, Lauver, Bauer, Yost, Gettman

The Sophomore Girls' League, composed of all girls in the sophomore class, is a social club whose purpose is to promote friendship among all the sophomore girls, and has been more active this year than any other year.

The first program to provide entertainment for the club took place on October 11 when a mixer was given for the sophomore girls. Fortune telling, indoor sports, and card games were the many features of the mixer. An annual occurrence which is always looked forward to by all the girls is the spring tea given by the girls for their mothers. The members entertain their guests by doing skits consisting of dancing, music, dramatics and other accomplishments attained during the school year.

All sophomore girls automatically belong to the organization which begins its activities at the start of the school year as soon as representatives are chosen. This year the following leaders were chosen: Barbara Baur, Joan Smith, Betty Wade, Mary Gustin, Charlene Zike, Pat Storey, Shirley Lauver, Betty Yost, Pat Bradley, Lucille Bailey, Joyce Gettman, and Irene Vanderpool. These representatives decide the policies of the club and organize activities which are not otherwise offered in high school. A "Newcomers Club" sponsored by Mary Dudley, and a "Dramatics Club" sponsored by Grace Chattam were organized by the club this year.

Officers for the club were: Joan Smith, Betty Yost, and Pat Storey; the sponsors were: Mary Feigel, Louise Murphy, Elva Adams, Mary Dudley, Alice Halstead, Enola Thomas, Gladys Nimmo, Grace Chattam, and Pearl Freeman.

The club in the past years has also sponsored an assembly for the girls in which performers were students from the University of Wyoming.

Since 1938 when the Pan American club was founded under the able sponsorship of Mildred Beck, it has been named as one of the most outstanding organizations in the school, helping to promote hemispheric solidarity. The purpose for organizing the club is to become better acquainted with our Latin American friends and their customs.

The club is under the leadership of Richard Low, president; Mary Ann Bartosh, vice-president; Roselyn Wolf, second vice-president; Lester Hunt, student representative; Lois Hayes, secretary; Harold Rayer, treasurer; Lois Knutson, sergeant-at-arms, and Leslie Cuthbert, class reporter.

The annual Pan American banquet was held at the first of this year to initiate new members into the club. After the banquet some of the members of the club presented an Indian dance and all new members completed their initiation by doing the dishes.

The project for the year was the "Geography of South America." At every meeting different members gave talks on the different countries of South America. These included the customs of the country, its government, facts and statistics. They also discussed how to achieve better relations with them. One meeting was turned over to all the types of folk dancing done by the different countries and examples were given by Lindy Lou Storey, Pat Dinneen, Jeanette Clark, and Joan Smith. After these, different kinds of Mexican candy were given to the members.

In past years the club has presented a stunt between halves of a basketball game and sponsored a mixer. In 1938 some South American pilots that were training at the local airport were guests of the Pan American Club for one night. Also the same year the Pan American Union in Washington, D. C. sponsored a contest on "What Pan-American Cooperation Means to my Country." Cheyenne high school students took part in this contest which was open to all high school students and members of Pan American associations. The prize was a four-year scholarship, two years of which were to be spent in a South American University. This scholarship is valued at $6,000.

"C" Club

Mulhern, Mills, Strauch, Godfrey, Richards
 Whelan, James, Benton, Phillips, Nolan, Genova, Edwards, Tsuda, Montgomery
 Boyack, J. Storey, Harris, Benson, Federer, Dalby, Lummis, Rosenberg
 Larson, Homan, Lathrop, Stoddard, Hensley, Jack Storey

Forming an organization that since 1921 has become one of the outstanding clubs of Cheyenne high school, the "C" Club members are easily distinguished by their cherry and black "C" sweaters.

Highlighting the year's activities is the annual "C" Club boxing tournament, which is gradually growing in popularity, and is under the leadership of "Okie" Blanchard, sponsor of the club, who also is the trainer of the boys' boxing. The winners of the 1944 matches are: 95 pound class, Jim Chocas; 115 pound class, George Calums; 125 pound class, Jack Hensman; 130 pound class, Wallace Parr; 135 pound class, Lee Jiacolletti; 140 pound class, R. E. Sinclair; 145 pound class, Don Horst; 155 pound class, Bob Benson; 165 pound class, Charles Pock; 175 pound class, R. S. Sinclair; heavyweight, Marvin Strauch.

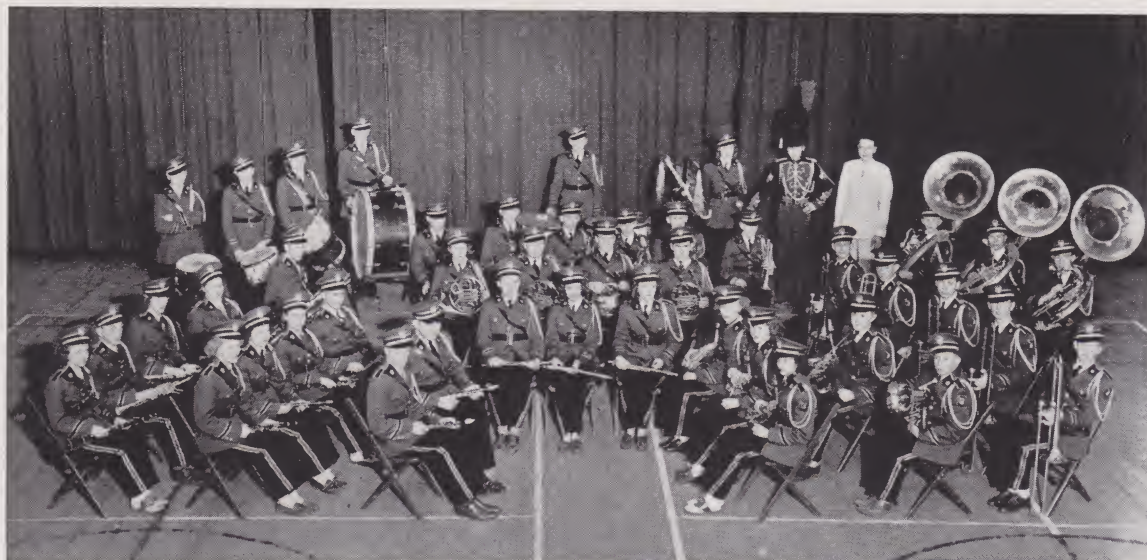

Proceeds of the "fights" go to the award fund of the club which in the past few years have been used in securing small gold footballs and basketballs for the championship teams. Also the fund is used for the Special Athletic Awards for boys winning five or more major letters in sports.

Those winning the award this year are: Marvin Homan, with 7 letters; Don MacDonald, 5 letters; Nate Rosenberg, 5 letters and possibly George Tsuda and Frank Hensley with their fifth letter depending on their track award.

Among the top of the events of the year is the annual "C" Club initiation when the new members are formally introduced into the club. The eighteen newcomers were given the oath by President Jim Federer and received congratulations from the old members after they had gone through the initiation.

A large share of the victories in the 1944-45 athletic season goes to the 22 senior lettermen. In the list of graduating boys we find few who have had the honor of making "all-state" teams and several that have been members of the "C" Club since their sophomore year. These seniors are: Marvin Homan, Pete Kinney, Don MacDonald, Bob Benson, George Tsuda, Jim Federer, Doran Lummis, Leonard Larson, Frank Hensley, Nate Rosenberg, Wantland Sandel, Dick Stoddard, Bill Harris, Bob Boyack, Walter Richards, Paul Phillips, Bob Oster, Roy Nolan, Glen Montgomery, Don Horst, Carl Furman, and Gene Binning.

All year long the students have had good music furnished by the high school band for athletic events, assemblies, and R.O.T.C. activities.

The outstanding project of this year's band was the purchase of new uniforms. The uniforms, which cost $2100, are cherry and black. This money was raised in part by ticket sales of the Armistice Day football game between Cheyenne and Laramie. The sales were handled by the R.O.T.C. Corps, the band itself, Pepsters, and Tomahawks. The R.O.T.C. did the most in this, raising over a thousand dollars. In addition, a $75 donation was received from the Tomahawks and $50 from the "C" Club. The Cheyenne Chamber of Commerce donated $416.

The bright cherry and black of the uniforms is in direct contrast to the old khaki R.O.T.C. uniforms which had been used since the band was officially formed.

The first official band was formed in 1920 to work with the R.O.T.C. Corps, which had been put into the school system the year before. It was formed at the request of an army officer named Kerwin, who was then head of the R.O.T.C. The first leader was Mr. Rosignole. During the ensuing year however, Mr. Rosignole died and Mr. Blamey was placed in charge. He was in charge until sometime in 1923 when Mr. Ross took over. During the next few years the band was led by the army sergeants who were attached to the R.O.T.C. Corps. In recent years the band has been led by a civilian instructor hired by the school board, and is now under the guidance of Blaine Blonquist.

This year the band appeared at all football and basketball games often participating in a stunt with one of the pep organizations.

During the early part of the year the members played for the American Legion luncheon and the Lions Club.

They also worked in cooperation with the R.O.T.C. Corps, in the Armistice Day parade and in the annual R.O.T.C. Federal Inspection.

The 52 students who practiced daily every 6th period showed a variety of talent and made the organization strong in all sections.

Orchestra

Because the music students of this year's busy, war-minded, student body could not devote all the time they would have liked to musical activities, the orchestra was somewhat smaller this year than previously. In the past, whereas students would have participated in the band and the orchestra, this year they did not have the time. However, through the efforts of the student musicians, and Blaine Blonquist, the orchestra leader, an orchestra was turned out which was on a par musically with the orchestras of other years.

During the first semester, the orchestra played for the Lions Club, the Kiwanis Club, and the Cheyenne Woman's Club. They were enthusiastically received at each of these performances. In the second semester appearances included the two annual concerts and participation in Music Week.

This year's orchestra was composed of some twenty people. In the string section, Genevieve Accord, Iverne Wald, Orville Daniels, and Mary Helen Burke played the violins. Lavada Manners, Betty Brungard, and Shirley Mason were celloists; Georgia Huey played the viola. The remainder of the section included; Barbara Martin as pianist and Beverly Nichols and Dean Milward on the basses.

The reed section was composed of Leon Harrison and Glen Cherry on the saxaphones while Richard Mills and Marjorie Early played clarinets.

In the brass section, Bob Boyack and Paul Mulhern played the cornets; the trombone was played by Dean Hepworth. The French horn and oboe were handled by Dick Brown and Jim Banks, respectively.

Being organized in November of 1943 by Blaine Blonquist, the Swing Club has come a long ways from its first rehearsals, and is well known throughout the community. The theme song of the orchestra, "Rose Room," was adopted by the club in '43 while recently they have chosen white and blue as their colors for stands and uniforms.

The vocalizing for the Swing Club is done by two trios and a soloist. One trio is composed of Elaine Cash, Norma Cash, and Rose Marie Carter; while Shirley Bradley, Ione Barrus, and Dorothy Schick comprise the other. Thelma Huffman is the Club's soloist.

Since its organization the Swing Club has given several assemblies and participated in several other ones. They have played for all the school mixers and dances such as the Sophomore Reception and Return.

After joining the Musicians' Union they played for various organizations such as the Jobs Daughters, and De Molays, the Wyoming Room in the Plains Hotel, Music Week, and the teachers' meeting. Every two weeks they played at the Fort Hospital, and have broadcasted over K F B C several times. They also played for the bond rally, "Victory Vanities." They have entertained for dances at Carpenter, Chugwater, LaGrange, and for the mid-quarter formal at Laramie.

A quintet has been taken from the Club for special occasions when the full orchestra is not needed. They are: cornet, Bob Boyack; saxophone, Jack Hansen; base, Dean Milward; drums, Jim Burkes; piano, Margaret Gowdy.

Music, like any other activity, has always been an integral part of Cheyenne high school life. No year has ever passed without the presentation of an operetta, a music festival, or a series of assembly programs, and the spring commencement exercises are never complete without a background of music. This year, the music department, under the direction of Mrs. Charlotte Douglass, has proved no exception to previous years.

The performances of the glee clubs and the concert group for various organizations in Cheyenne as well as the performances given for high school audiences have received wide acclaim in Cheyenne music circles.

The concert group, composed of juniors and seniors, began its work last September under the auspices of Miss Mae Martin. When Miss Martin resigned to get married, her position was filled by Mrs. Charlotte Douglass, who has directed the group since then.

First appearance of the concert group, which is a cappella, was in a musical assembly which included the entire music department. At Christmas time a beautiful Christmas cantata, "The Story of Christmas," was presented, after which the group participated in another assembly program.

This was followed by an Easter vesper service with a varied program of hymns and Easter music. Besides presenting a spring concert, the group performed during Music Week, and completed the year's activities by participating in the graduation exercises.

Under the capable leadership of Lieutenant Colonel Jesse R. Lippincott, and Staff Sergeant Rush C. Piersall, the cadet corps finished another outstanding year in military work, with an unofficial rating of the best battalion in the United States. The local R. O. T. C. chalked up a record during 1944-1945 that assured their winning another honor star.

Rated as the favorite of the boys in high school, the enrollment this year exceeded 387 students. All these boys showed high morale and keen interest in their work. These went to make up an outstanding spirit which showed in drill movements and classroom subjects.

Cheyenne high school's present unit of the R.O.T.C. was organized on November 19, 1919, starting with two platoons and sixty-five carbines, model 1899. The young military organization drilled on alternate days with the enthusiasm that paved the way towards expanding it to a battalion of four companies, three platoons each. During those years of hard work, Cheyenne's R.O.T.C. has been rated as an honor corps in the seventh corps area eight times.

First members of the corps were clad in gray uniforms. Since that time the unit has received government issued khaki uniforms which are identical to the regular Army troop's with the exception that there are blue lapels on the cadet blouse to distinguish it as an R.O.T.C. uniform. Cheyenne's R.O.T.C. prides itself in being one of the best uniformed corps in the United States.

Rifle Team

Halfpenny, Will, Roulston, Dunlap, Hunter, Piersall
Reeves, Hemple, Yarter, Mills, Burke

Quick on the trigger is the rifle team of Cheyenne high, which, under the guiding hands of Staff Sergeant Rush C. Piersall, has once again made an outstanding record for itself during the course of the year.

Having both returning veterans and new recruits, the Sarge has once again coached a championship team which came out of the seventh service command inter-collegiate meets with a large share of the honors. After participating in the national inter-collegiate meet, the sure fire club walked off with high honors.

To be eligible for these contests, every man on the team must know correct sighting and aiming positions. Most members are surprised to find that rifle marksmanship is very difficult and complicated. When the new marksmen come into the team is the time that Sergeant Piersall really has to put into effect all the training he has had in instructing boys to be dead-eye shots. Each boy must know the steps in learning to fire a rifle and must train in the following subjects: sighting and aiming, which takes up the correct sight picture; position, which deals with the various positions such as prone, sitting, kneeling, and standing; trigger squeeze, which teaches the marksman how to correctly squeeze the trigger; rapid fire, which trains the shooter in firing and loading the rifle with rapidity; and then, after weeks and months of putting these fundamentals to use, the boys are given a chance to show their marksmanship in contests. All these fundamentals must be seen and corrected by the sergeant.

Only constant training can make a good rifle team and that is what the Cheyenne high school team has had plenty of. They practiced during their R.O.T.C. periods, both after school and at night to gain the needed accuracy in their shooting. The boys had an excellent range on which to practice. The R.O.T.C. range is soundproof and has had neon lighting added to it this year. Targets are arranged fifty feet away from the firing line.

This year the rifle team has had added to it a number of sophomores who are proving to be good shots. Sergeant Piersall trains these boys to fire in rifle matches, both national and local. These riflemen compete for prizes which are given out during the year and at showdown night for the best shots. Besides the William Randolph Hearst prizes the members may receive, there are numerous other awards given by Ft. Warren and a cup on R.O.T.C. showdown night is given by the R.O.T.C. corps to the highest scorer during the year. Also the boys can qualify for letters which are given out at the end of the year. At matches with the Fort Warren rifle teams, the local team won most of the matches. The Fort presented a silver bazooka shell to each boy with his name engraved on it for being on the winning team.

Interest in football picked up at Cheyenne high school this year. This interest was stimulated both by the brand of ball that the boys played and improved facilities for the players.

Coach 'Okie' Blanchard and 'Oc' Erickson were greeted by over 75 aspirants when the opening practices were held last August. Of this number, 12 were lettermen from last year's championship squad. They were: Don MacDonald, Frank Hensley, Jim Godfrey, Jim Federer, Bob Boyack, Bill Harris, Nate Rosenberg, George Tsuda, Pete Kinney, Marvin Homan, Jim Storey, and Bob Benson.

By remaining undefeated in state competition, the Indians copped the mythical state championship for the second year in succession.

The Indians scored 167 points during the season while holding their opponents to a bare 19 points, only 7 of which were scored against them in state competition. Also the Tribe placed three players on the all-state first team, and three on the second squad. Those who made the first team were: Don MacDonald, Marvin Homan, and Jim Federer, while Bob Benson, Bob Boyack, and Frank Hensley landed second team places.

In their march to the title last year, the Tribe was forced to give battle on the Frontier Park playing field with its extremely limited facilities. To say the least, the ground was very rough. During the summer, however, the Fort Warren bowl was resodded, its seating capacity increased, and in general, reconditioned, thereby offering good playing facilities.

Cheyenne's hopes for their fourth consecutive championship took a severe jolt when Don MacDonald, all-state postman, quit the squad and joined the Navy just before the crucial Casper series in the Mustang's home town. The team, however, managed to take one of the two contests there and then worked out a system to offset their loss.

Three boys on the squad this year made the all-state squad on the basis of their play. They included: Leonard Larson, Marvin Homan, and Doran Lummis, who received honorable mention.

Besides MacDonald the team will feel the loss of 5 other seniors: Doran Lummis, Leonard Larson, Nate Rosenberg, Marvin Homan, and Dick Stoddard. Back to lead the squad next year will be Carl Lathrop, Jack Storey, Jim Storey, Roland Dalby, Pinky Edwards, and Bud Whelan. All of these boys are juniors. Promising sophomores are Jack Landis, and John Genova.

After the state tournament was over in Laramie, the Cheyenne Indians were again on top of the heap for the fourth straight year. Four state championship teams in four successive years is certainly a record to be envied by the athletic department of any school.

This four-year record would not have been possible without this year's championship squad, one of the best Indian squads ever. A vote of thanks is due 'Okie' Blanchard, Indian mentor, and 'Oc' Erickson, his assistant, for the excellent coaching they gave this year's team.

In regularly scheduled games this season, the Indians won 23 out of 26 games. Besides this record the team went through the seven-game grind of the district and state tournaments undefeated. This made a final total of 30 games won out of 33 played.

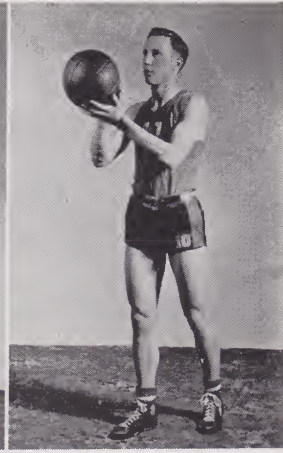

Seventy boys were on hand for opening tryouts for this year's squad. This number was gradually thinned out as time went on, some boys dropping to play intra-mural ball. Bolstering the team were 9 lettermen, 6 of whom were seniors.

Tennis and horseshoes were the first sports at the beginning of the school year. In the junior-senior "A" tennis bracket, Marjorie Austin won first, Elsie O'Hashi, second, and Marie Yonkoff, third. Shirley Wooden won first in the "B" group, Arline Pasternack second, Estelle Brown, third. In the sophomore group Helen English was first, Pat Storey, second, and Faustina Russell, third.

In the "A" bracket of the horseshoe tournament Estelle Brown was first, Marie O'Hashi, second; in the "B" bracket Elsie O'Hashi won first, and Alyce Lujan, second.

Captains of upperclass volleyball teams were: Rosemary Hanlon, Ellen Herring, Billie Parsley, and Mary Lee Rogers.

M. L. Rogers' team won first place in the junior-senior bracket of the volleyball tournament, with Rosemary Hanlon's team coming in for second, and Ellen Herring's for third. Dorothy Quinn's team won first in the sophomore league, Joyce Gettman's team, second, and Kate Adkins', third.

Members of Rogers' team were: Marjorie Austin, Florence Keithley, Alyce Lujan, Charline Matejka, Shirley Reeves, Mary Lee Rogers, and Shirley Wooden.

Rosemary Hanlon's team won the coveted first place in the school championship playoff; M. L.

Rogers' team was second, Joyce Gettman's third, and Dorothy Quinn's fourth. Hanlon's team was composed of: Estelle Brown, Joan Franson, Glenna Frelove, Rosemary Hanlon, Marilyn Hansacker, Jean Harnish, Aloha Miller, Elsie O'Hashi, and Marie Yonkoff.

Basketball, as usual, had the most participants of any of the sports taken up during the 1944-45 season. In the junior-senior bracket, Elsie O'Hashi's team won first place. Girls on her team were: Joan Franson, Glenna Frelove, Marilyn Hansacker, Jean Harnish, Florence Keithley, Elsie O'Hashi, Thelma Oliver, and Marie Yonkoff. Second place winner in this bracket was Alyce Lujan's team. Members of this team were: Marjorie Austin, Estelle Brown, Alyce Lujan, Mary Lee Rogers, Lois Wheelhouse, and Shirley Wooden.

Mitzi Seale's team won first in the sophomore league; Marie O'Hashi's won second.

The Yale-Harvard contest, which is usually the climax of the basketball season, was played on February 14, 1945, in the high school gym. Girls playing on either of these teams must be juniors or seniors and must have played in at least two-thirds of the tournament games. They were voted on by captains, basketball sports leader, and G.A.A. officers.

Swimming Team

Forwards on the Harvard team were: Maryanne Bartosch, Jean Harnish, Connie Nelson, Elsie O'Hashi, and Lois Wheelhouse. Guards were: Jerry Beahm, Glenna Freelove, Alyce Lujan, Wretha Morrison, and Marie Yonkoff. Their coach was Mr. Gowan.

The combined girls' and boys' swimming teams were very successful in competition against Casper both here and there. Girls that worked out for the team were: Joan Accord, Estelle Brown, Luella Curran, Joan Franson, Glenna Freelove, Alyce Lujan, Carleen Poole, Shirley Reeves, and Mary Lee Rogers.

The annual swimming carnival and meet was held March 8 and 9. There was a large number of participants.

A badminton tournament was held during the latter part of February. In the spring, softball and track finished up the sports calendar for the girls.

Thanks for the Misery

When that person said that pictures don't lie, he must have been referring to the above photograph. As far as it is concerned, a truer statement was never made. There is, however, one exaggeration about the picture, and that is Bronstein's nose. (Kilty's feet don't show.) But we've got a lot of thanking to do, so

The first person we heap these tokens of gratitude upon is a wonderful guy and a swell photographer, Doyle Quigley. Along with the rest of us he "knocked himself out" to get the results you see here, a la gratis, at that.

And then there is Warner Brooks and the other people of The Kistler Stationery Company, who so graciously put up with us while we were going through the process of experimenting. A vote of thanks also is due the David S. Molloy Company of Chicago, who accepted our design with nary a wince and turned out the covers for this book.

Let's see now, one more thank you and we can put away the soap. That last one is directed to Marian Stout's car, the game little Plymouth that it is, (was), which bore its load of human suffering on many trips to Denver for the express purpose of shaping this Annual. As a token of appreciation we threw a party for the car out of the kindness of our hearts, and gave it a brand new tire repair kit. The poor thing nearly swallowed its carburetor in appreciation.

One last thing before we close the pages, in spite of the fact that at times it looked as if the book would not come out, in spite of the fact that there were arguments, it was fun.
